

EXECUTIVE MOVES

Kabelo Rabotho joins BMW Group as the new general manager for the Mini brand. Rabotho joins the company from Imperial Toyota, where he was a dealer principal. Before that Rabotho was a national sales manager at Absa.

John Smelcer has been appointed partner at Webber Wentzel Africa mining & energy projects practice in Johannesburg. Smelcer was the founding national programme director of the Public Policy Partnership in South Africa.

Rudolph Torlage will step down as the chief financial officer of ArcelorMittal SA to focus on strategic projects. He will be replaced by Matthias Wellhausen, the chief financial officer of ArcelorMittal for Asia, Africa and CIS.

Dinga Madubela has resigned as a nonexecutive director of SilverBridge after his resignation earlier this year from Amabubesi Capital, a major shareholder in SilverBridge. Hasheel Govind will replace him. Govind is the chief financial officer of the Amabubesi Group.

Mark Antonic has resigned as an executive director of Argent and Gavin Youngman has stepped down as an alternate director. Youngman will become responsible for the general management of one of Argent's subsidiaries, Atomic Office Equipment. Antonic will be taking over the management of Argent's joint venture.

Emma Oosthuizen has replaced Mary Batoff as the company secretary of First Uranium. Batoff remains president and chief executive officer of the company and Oosthuizen will continue to serve in the roles of senior vice-president and chief financial officer.

Kholeka Winifred Mzondeki has resigned with immediate effect as an independent nonexecutive director from the board of Reunert. She also resigns as a member of the Reunert audit committee and the social, ethics and transformation committee.

Bethuel Ngwenya has resigned as group company secretary of Barloworld.

Roger Hogarth will retire as an executive director from the board of Life Healthcare in June 2013.

Aziza Amod has been appointed a nonexecutive director of Sekunjalo.

Mark Basel joins Times Media as a nonexecutive director.